4-YEAR-OLD BOY SLAIN BY MANIAC OR FOR REVENGE

Little Fellow Battered to Death With Stone While at Play and Concealed in Underbrush Near His Home.

That Andrew Malaney, the four-year-old son of a mill superintendent of Cedar Grove, a hamlet in Essex County, N. J., was brutally murdered yesterday afternoon was clearly established to-day. The boy's head was crushed in by a stone in the hands of either a man with a grudge against Mr. Malaney or an escaped lunatic from the Overbrook Insane Asylum, the largest in New Jersey, which is about half a mile from the scene of the crime.

"There is no doubt that my boy was murdered," said Mr. Malaney to an Evening World reporter, "and I think I know the man who killed him. I hope my suspicions are incorrect, but circumstances point to the guilt of a man in this village who is employed in the mill over which I have
